

ATHERA

A SELF-DRIVEN FAITH

THE ATHERIAN CONSTITUTION

PREAMBLE

For centuries, mankind has been asked to believe before it questions, and to obey before it understands. Athera reverses that order.

We are not a faith built on revelation, nor a philosophy borrowed from another age. We are a movement founded on the one authority no institution can take from us — the human capacity to reason, to feel compassion, and to choose rightly without being told to.

This Constitution does not ask for your surrender. It asks for your discipline. What follows are not commandments handed down, but principles arrived at — and every Atherian is free to test them against their own conscience before accepting them as their own.

Read them not as law, but as a mirror.

THE TEN ARTICLES of Atherianism

ARTICLE 1 — ON REASON

Every Atherian shall be governed by reason and evidence alone. No doctrine, scripture, or inherited belief shall command allegiance that logic itself has not first earned.

ARTICLE 2 — ON COMPASSION

No Atherian shall inflict cruelty upon any living being. Compassion is not sentiment; it is discipline, and it shall guide every choice we make toward the voiceless and the vulnerable.

ARTICLE 3 — ON SUSTENANCE

No Atherian shall kill, harm, or consume any living being for food or pleasure. Our sustenance shall come from what can be taken without blood.

ARTICLE 4 — ON NATURE

Nature shall be regarded as teacher, home, and trust. Every Atherian is bound to protect it, not merely admire it, so that what we inherited whole is not passed on diminished.

ARTICLE 5 — ON SELF-MASTERY

Every Atherian shall pursue a life of discipline over indulgence. Celibacy, where chosen, is not denial but freedom — the refusal to let desire dictate the course of a life meant for higher purpose.

ARTICLE 6 — ON INDEPENDENCE

No Atherian shall be bound by ritual, relationship, or social conditioning that was never chosen freely. We answer to conscience, not custom.

ARTICLE 7 — ON FREEDOM

Every Atherian shall honour the freedom of others as fiercely as their own, provided that freedom brings no harm to any living being. Liberty without restraint is chaos; liberty with conscience is Athera.

ARTICLE 8 — ON INTEGRITY

Every Atherian shall uphold truth and self-discipline as non-negotiable. Deceit, in thought or in dealing, has no home within this movement.

ARTICLE 9 — ON EQUALITY

No Atherian shall discriminate on any ground — of birth, belief, gender, or circumstance. Justice is owed equally to all, or it is owed to none.

ARTICLE 10 — ON SOVEREIGNTY OF SELF

No Atherian shall worship an idol, perform an empty ritual, or submit to dogma. Conscience alone is our authority, and each of us is the final judge of our own righteousness.

Athera imposes nothing.

It only asks that you think freely, live ethically, and stay true.
